FROM OUR ARCHBISHOP.....

A multifaceted and collaborative approach to pro-life issues as published in the October/November 2021 Catholic St. Louis magazine. The best way to support life is to offer so much community support that abortion isn't even a consideration.

Dear brothers and sisters in Christ,

This past year I've been writing about serving the Lord at the peripheries. It's fitting to speak about our pro-life work as the capstone of that series. Thanks to the Gateway Arch, most of us are familiar with the role of a capstone. It's the last piece placed in an arch, and holds the whole structure together. That's exactly what our pro-life work does. It's not the only thing we do. But without this piece, everything else falls apart.

One of the most important things to understand about our approach to pro-life issues is how multifaceted and collaborative it is.

First, all of our pro-life work is rooted in prayer. The sisters at Our Lady of Guadalupe Convent pray and provide a place of hospitality for those who come to pray outside the abortion clinic in St. Louis. We have Mass once a month and an annual Roe v. Wade memorial Mass. In this, as in all things, prayer is at the heart of our service. Perhaps the most important visible expression of our pro-life commitment is the care we provide for mothers in need. Whether it's through our own Good Shepherd Children and Family Services, St. Martha's Hall, Queen of Peace Center, or Marygrove, or whether it's through our many community partners like Birthright, Coalition for Life, Haven of Grace, Mary Queen of Angels, Our Lady's Inn, and so many others, we make sure there's always a place for a mother to turn and find help.

Of course people do have and have had and will have abortions. Our first response there is not to condemn but to offer healing. We do this through our Abortion Healing Ministries like Project Rachel (for women) and Project Joseph (for men). These programs offer the healing of Jesus to those who have been involved in an abortion.

Finally, through our efforts in schools, our annual convention, our participation in the March for Life and the legislative efforts of our partners at the Missouri Catholic Conference, we work to educate about, bear witness to and enact protections for the value of life. Do we think abortion is wrong? We do! It ends a life, harms a mother and hurts the family and society. So we will continue to push for laws and policies that respect life in cities, counties, the state and the nation. But the best way to articulate our belief in the value of life is to offer so much support from the community that women don't even consider an abortion. Maybe the central thrust of our pro-life work is best captured in the USCCB project "A Year of Service: Walking with Moms in Need." Here in the "show me" state, our pro-life work is a model of serving the Lord at the peripheries. If we could bring this same kind of deep, multifaceted and collaborative approach to every periphery it would make a huge difference. And it would show the world: This is who the Church is. We serve the Lord at the peripheries, and we do it with gladness.

If you know anyone in need please reach out to us. The biggest thing we want to do is help.

WATCH

CLARE AND FRANCIS

This outstanding movie is unique among films about St. Francis because of the historical accuracy of the story and its authentic spirit of joy and piety so characteristic of Francis, as well as the major role played by Clare, who is given equal stature with him. Both found major religious orders, and together they inspire many to follow their radical call to live the Gospel. Their impact has reached across the centuries to change the world.

The Truth Is...

PSR

I am excited to be subbing for 8th grade this week. I love teaching 8th grade. When I was briefed on the current session, the quest for happiness, I read it through, took notes, found a great video, etc. Then I re-read the class plan and realized that I was mistaken, that was last week's lesson. This week is disordered thinking: Individualism, Hedonism, Relativism... Oh no! It's not that I don't know what all of these misguided ways of life are about, it's the teaching and discussing them, especially when 93% of teenagers believe in Relativism! Lord, haven't you challenged me enough just getting PSR going?!

To be honest, I don't think 93% of teenagers are Relativists. I think 93% of teenagers are afraid of not fitting in, being considered intolerant, being isolated, being "uncool." These days, if we deny someone their own "truth" these are the risks we take. The culture is confusing and heartbreaking.

I know I'll be working on this lesson until Saturday night. There's been so much confusion for me over the past few years that when I look at Jesus in Adoration, I think, "Jesus, you are the only truth." But I can't start there with 13 and 14 year olds. So far, all I've got is this:

Relativism is based on the idea that what's true for one may not be true for another, and that's all good. It says, "I've got to be me, and no one is going to tell me how to live my life." This disordered way of thinking ultimately denies God and causes complete chaos, because in this situation, one party must conform to the other's truth. It isolates each person to themselves. Are we our own gods?

As Catholics, we believe God is our creator, who created us out of and for love. What is love? Love is desiring the good of the other for their sake, not our own--not so we'll be liked, not so we'll be popular, not so we'll be considered cool. It is wanting what is good for another with no strings attached. Ultimately, the Church guides us with a sense of purpose to our actions, a sense of "in the end, where will this action take me?" If I don't believe in the objective truth that God is my creator and that one day I might return to him, where does that leave me?

Does a Catholic believe that someone who has their own "truth" should be disrespected? If we are created out of and for love, then surely we believe in the dignity, freedom and inherent worth of every individual--no matter their gender, background, race, or education. Every human person is worthy of our infinite love and respect.

The truth is... we are defined as children of God and are to love one another as such.

Deacon Formation Collection

Please give generously to the Deacon Formation Collection this weekend. Over the past 44 years, the strength of the Deacon Formation program in the Archdiocese has relied heavily upon voluntary contributions and, in particular, this special collection. Please know that your gift can make a tremendous difference. In particular, I want to thank all of the parishioners who have consistently and generously supported this program during my 15 plus years here at Church of the Annunziata.
